CYGNAL

Survey of General Population Israel - Hamas Awareness and Attitudes

October 16 – 18, 2023 | n=2,020 | $\pm 2.18\%$

Insights & Analysis

- Americans are aware and have followed the events in Israel since the attack by Hamas over the past two weeks, especially those of Jewish or Muslim religion.
 - Two-thirds overall have followed the events at least somewhat closely, including 59% of Jewish-Americans who have followed very closely and 45% of Muslim-Americans who have followed very closely.
- Jewish-Americans are much more aware of the facts surrounding the attack by Hamas than both Muslim-Americans and the general population.
 - Those on the far ends – left and right – of the political spectrum are paying much more attention to what is happening in Israel. College-educated voters are also much more likely to be paying attention to the conflict in Israel. Independents are most likely to be neutral on their opinion of Israel compared to Democrats and Republicans.
 - Both Jewish-Americans and the general population are most aware of three facts: 1,200 people were killed, 250 music festival attendees were killed, and there are hundreds of hostages abducted from Israel being held in Gaza.
 - Interestingly, Muslim-Americans are most acutely aware of the thousands reported killed from a week of Israeli airstrikes in Palestinian territory. Overall, Muslim-Americans are most aware of there are hundreds of hostages abducted from Israel being held in Gaza.
- Regarding issues in the Middle East, 63% of Americans are informed of the Israel-Palestine conflict compared to a third who are uninformed. 82% of Jewish-Americans consider themselves informed (9% “experts”) while 66% of Muslim-Americans consider themselves informed (12% “experts”).
 - There is a large gender gap whereby men are much more likely to think they are informed on the Middle East issues than women.

Insights & Analysis

- Americans are more informed of Israeli politics (52% informed) than Fatah, Hamas, and Palestinian politics (47% informed). Muslim-Americans consider themselves nearly equally informed on both, and Jewish-Americans are more informed on Israeli politics (72% informed) than Fatah, Hamas, and Palestinian politics (62% informed).
 - Americans consider themselves nearly equally informed on the role of Iran in the Middle East and the relations between Israel and other nations in the region.
- Regarding issues in Europe, Americans (including both Jewish and Muslim) are slightly more aware of the Ukraine-Russia war than the attack by Hamas over the past two weeks.
 - However, Americans consider themselves slightly less informed on the details within Europe such as the mass migration from Africa and the Middle East (42% informed) and the rise of nationalist and populist political parties (49% aware). Muslim-Americans are more informed than Jewish-Americans on both issues.
- Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is favorable among the general population (+15 net fav), and he's more net favorable among Republicans (+38 net fav) than Jewish-Americans (+27 net fav). He's only slightly underwater among Muslim-Americans (-3 net fav).
 - There is a large partisan split in positive views of Netanyahu (Republicans prefer) and the Democrats' and Independent's views of the Israeli prime minister.
- Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas (-26 net fav overall; +16 net fav Muslim-Americans) and Hamas Leader Ismail Haniyeh (-47 net fav overall; +4 net fav Muslim-Americans) are both especially unfavorable overall and among Jewish-Americans but are both favorable among Muslim-Americans.
 - While Muslim-Americans have a higher view of the leader of Hamas and the Palestinian Authority than Jews or other Americans, they have almost as equally as high a view of Netanyahu.

Insights & Analysis

- President Joe Biden (-11 net fav overall) is especially unfavorable among Evangelicals and has a similar unfavorability rating overall with Hamas Leader Haniyeh. His image is much better among Jewish-Americans (+19 net fav) than Muslim-Americans (-1 net fav), who find Hamas Leader Haniyeh more favorable than President Biden.
 - Ukrainian President Zelenskyy (+30 net fav overall) is much more net favorable among each group than Biden.
- Hamas is largely seen as about the same as Al Qaeda, the Taliban, and ISIS (60% about the same among each), while roughly a third say Hamas is worse than the other three terrorist groups. Muslim-Americans tend to agree, though they slightly over-index for saying Hamas is not as bad as each of the other three terrorist organizations.
- A majority overall have a positive opinion of Israel (37% neutral, 12% negative). The vast majority of Jewish-Americans have a positive opinion of Israel (85%) while Muslim-Americans have a net negative opinion (34% positive, 37% negative).
 - Opinions of Israel have not changed overall (62% not changed), but the same number now have a negative opinion (19% gotten worse) as positive opinion (19% improved).
- A majority overall have a neutral opinion of Gaza (32% negative, 17% positive), and there are much more negative opinions than of Israel, especially from Jewish-Americans. A majority of Muslim-Americans have a positive opinion of Gaza.
- Following the attack in Israel, the general population is slightly less supportive of Biden's leadership (37%) than more supportive (25%). Jewish-Americans are more supportive than Muslim-Americans, who are net-less supportive

- The general population has gotten less supportive of the Democratic Party than the Republican Party because of the terrorist attack on Israel, but both Jewish-Americans and Muslim-Americans have gotten more supportive of the Democratic Party. Jewish-Americans have gotten much less supportive of the Republican party. Muslims are more likely to be less supportive of the Democratic Party after the Hamas attack on Israel than Jewish Americans.
 - All groups have become less supportive of Iran, while support for Palestine remains largely unchanged among each group.
- In terms of agreement for response or retaliation, the strongest agreement overall is that Israel has a right to defend itself. A majority also agree that Israel should invade Gaza and remove the Hamas leadership, it is time for Israel to negotiate with Hamas for hostages, and that Palestinians have legitimate grievances with Israel.
 - A majority strongly disagree that Hamas was justified in attacking Israel.
- Jewish-Americans show much more agreement that Israel has a right to defend and should invade Gaza, but there is more disagreement that Israel should negotiate with Hamas for hostages, Palestinians have legitimate grievances with Israel, and Hamas was justified in the attack.
 - A majority of Muslim-Americans agree that Israel has a right to defend itself, but in stark contrast, a majority disagree that Israel should invade Gaza, and a majority agree that Hamas was justified in its attack on Israel.
- On the topic of the level of aid the U.S. should provide for Israel, a majority agree that the U.S. should stand strongly with Israel, the U.S. should provide financial support, and that Iran should be held accountable for the actions of Hamas against Israel.

Insights & Analysis

- The general population is largely split on whether the U.S. should directly engage its military to support Israel. There is also nearly even agreement and disagreement for whether support for Israel is more important than support for Ukraine, and if this is Israel's business and the U.S. should stay out. Jewish-Americans agree with more support for Israel while Muslim Americans disagree.
 - Americans aren't viewing supporting Israel as in conflict of support for Ukraine and its fight against Russia.
- Nearly a majority overall (47%) are concerned about pro-Palestinian protests in America, including 74% of Jewish-Americans. 38% overall are indifferent and 15% support the protests.
 - Jewish-Americans and Republicans look similar in their concerns about recent pro-Palestinian protests and demonstrations.
- A third overall are fearful about attending religious services including two-thirds of Jewish-Americans and a majority of Muslim-Americans. Evangelicals are least fearful.
- A strong majority would be less likely to vote for a candidate who supports releasing billions of dollars in frozen assets for Iran to use, and for a candidate who supports allowing Iran to evade sanctions and earn billions from oil sales. Muslim-Americans are evenly split on more or less likely for both issues.
- Antisemitism in the U.S. is on the rise for a majority of the general population including 80% of Jewish-Americans. 30% of Muslim-Americans believe it is on the rise in the U.S.
 - Globally, antisemitism is even more on the rise for the general population and is about the same for Jewish-Americans as it is in the U.S. Muslim-Americans agree that it is on the rise globally more than in the U.S.
