CYGNAL

Survey of Likely 2026 General Election Voters National

August 7 – 9, 2025 | n=1500 | $\pm 2.51\%$

Insights & Analysis

- After last month which saw threats to democracy overtake inflation and the economy as the top priority for the first time since 2022, voters now prioritize inflation and the economy (20%) once again over threats to democracy (19%).
 - This shift is not driven by a decrease in importance of threats to democracy which increased from 18% in July to 19%. The shift is largely driven by illegal immigration / border dropping from 15% in July to 13% this month.
 - The movement away from illegal immigration to inflation as a top priority can be seen across the electorate but most notably among men and Republicans.
- Women under the age of 55 drove a dip in the direction of the country question, moving net negative nine points.
 - Male voters felt more favorable about the direction of the country since July, and older female voters stayed the same.
- Trump and Vance both saw their net images slightly drop one point, driven by some softness among Hispanic voters.
- Mike Johnson (33 fav, 39 unfav) is slightly more net favorable than Alexandra Ocasio-Cortez (38 fav, 44 unfav).
- Both Republicans (+5 net fav) and Democrats (+7 net fav) improved their images since July with both parties seeing an improvement among the opposing bases.
- A slim plurality of voters rate the U.S. economy as fair (29%) compared to 26% who rate it poor and 24% who rate it good.
 - On the extremes, 15% rate it as terrible and 5% say excellent.

Insights & Analysis

- Republicans (42% good) are more optimistic than Democrats (35% poor) and Independents (35% poor).
- Blue collar workers (30% fair, 24% poor) more a little more optimistic than white collar workers (28% fair, 27% poor).
- Black and Hispanic voters are much more likely to rate the economy as terrible (27%, 26%) than White voters (11%).
- In comparison, voters are more optimistic about their state's economy: 33% rate it as fair (+4 more than the U.S. economy), 25% good (+1), and 21% poor (-5)
 - A similar amount rate their state's economy as excellent (4%; -1) and terrible (14%; -1) compared to the U.S. economy.
 - The distinction is clearest across partisan lines: Democrats (+15 good from U.S. to state economy, -14 poor) and Independents (+4 good, -10 poor) are far more optimistic about their state's economy, and the opposite holds true for Republicans (-12 good, +6 poor).
- Voters are most optimistic about their personal economic situation, but a plurality again rate it as just fair (37%; +4 from their state's economy).
 - 33% rate their personal situation as good (+8 from their state's economy), 15% poor (-6 from their state's economy).
 - The same amount (7%) rate their personal situation as excellent (+4) and terrible (-7).

Insights & Analysis

- A majority of voters (52%) believe the American Dream is no longer alive today (44% alive).
 - This negative sentiment is felt most by voters under 30 (30% alive, 67% not alive).
 - A majority of voters aged 30–54 share the feeling that it is not alive.
 - Voters aged 55–64 are most positive about the American Dream (50% alive, 44% not alive), and voters 65+ (48% alive, 46% not alive) tend to be more split.
 - Republicans (69% alive, 27% not alive) are much more positive than Independents (34% alive, 62% not alive) and Democrats (22% alive, 72% not alive).
- A huge swath of voters (69%) believe states should not consider race when drawing congressional districts (22% should consider race).
 - Though they oppose race consideration overall, Black voters (41% should, 49% should not) and Hispanic voters (35% should, 56% should not) believe in the consideration more than White voters (18% should, 74% should not).
- 48% of voters care deeply about redistricting (27% care somewhat, 8% very little / not at all), but it is definitely one-sided from a partisan perspective.
 - Independents (51% care deeply, 26% care somewhat) and Democrats (58% care deeply, 20% care somewhat) care much more about redistricting than Republicans (38% care deeply, 34% care somewhat).
- Democrats are more motivated about the midterm elections (71% extremely motivated) than Republicans (66% extremely motivated) by a 5-point delta.
 - Mirroring the generic ballot, 47% are most likely to support or lean toward Democrats in the next election compared to 46% for Republicans. Independents stand at +12 toward Democrats.

Insights & Analysis

- A whopping 78% of voters are concerned about the impact of interest rates on the overall economy.
 - 57% of voters believe the Federal Reserve should lower interest rates over the next year (just 11% raise, 20% keep the same rates).
- Voters tend to have a little (25%) or only some trust (23%) in the Federal Reserve to make decisions that benefit the U.S. economy.
 - 16% have no trust at all compared to 18% who have a great deal of trust.
 - Republicans show much less trust than Democrats, and Independents' trust falls in between the two.
- 46% believe the main reason the Federal Reserve raises interest rates is to control inflation.
 - Far less believe it is to protect the value of the dollar (16%), slow down economic growth (13%), or hurt Trump (11%).
 - Nearly a quarter of Republicans (22%) believe it is to hurt Trump.
- 44% of voters disapprove of how interest rates have been managed by the Federal Reserve in the past year, 10% more than those who approve.
 - A majority of Democrats approve, while two thirds of Republicans disapprove. Independents are split.
 - Voters don't really have an opinion on Powell stepping down as the Federal Reserve Chair: 38% believe it will help the U.S. economy, and 42% believe it will hurt.
 - Republicans are most optimistic by Trump's move, while Democrats and Independents are pessimistic.

Insights & Analysis

- Voters don't really understand the Federal Reserve's role with interest rates considering 39% prefer the Federal Reserve to set interest rates while 33% prefer the free market.
 - Democrats, college-educated voters, and white-collar workers are strongest believers in the Federal Reserve, while Republicans and blue-collar workers are believers in the free market.
- Regarding trade deals, a plurality believe the U.S. is often taken advantage of (35%). This sentiment is strongest among Republicans and men 55+.
 - This is more than the amount who believe trade deals are generally fair (25%), which is an opinion held mostly by college-educated voters.
- Before this survey, 53% were aware that tariffs had increased government revenue. Just 13% were not aware, and 31% were somewhat or vaguely aware.
 - Knowing about this revenue, voters are split at 46% on whether they support or oppose the tariffs. Independents oppose +14.
 - Similarly, 48% believe Trump has been successful (47% unsuccessful) in his tariff negotiations. Independents stand at unsuccessful +21.
- 61% believe recipients of federal food support, like EBT or food stamps, should be not able to use that money to purchase snack foods, sugary drinks, and other highly processed foods.
 - 34% believe they should be able to – primarily younger, more urban, and Democratic voters.
- 24% of voters would be willing to wait in a longer line to receive a physical passport stamp at an international port of entry – primarily younger voters and Republicans.
 - A plurality (30%) would prefer a digital and streamlined process.

Insights & Analysis

- Voters aren't fans of AI predicting what each traveler is willing to pay for airline tickets. 80% believe the practice is unfair.
 - Interestingly, non-white voters are more than 2x more likely to say it is fair compared to white voters.
- Republicans are more likely to say they are blue-collar workers (41%) than Democrats (30%).
 - Two-thirds of non-college-educated men are blue-collar workers.
- Advanced Segmentation Analysis produced four segments this month: Young GOPs (18%), Old GOPs (35%), Old Dems (29%), and Young Dems (18%).
 - Young GOPs are focused on inflation / economy (29%), while Old GOPs care about illegal immigration (31%) and government waste (28%).
 - Old Dems are concerned with threats to democracy (49%) and Young Dems are focused on inflation (27%).
 - Young GOPs are slightly more negative on the direction of the country show slightly less support than Old GOPs for the Republican on the generic ballot. This appears to be driven by their slightly less favorable opinions of Trump.
 - The younger groups are much less motivated for the midterm elections than their older counterparts, and they show more trust in the Federal Reserve.

Do you believe states should consider race when drawing congressional districts?

Care about Redistricting

Redistricting is the process of redrawing the boundaries of electoral districts to reflect changes in population and ensure fair representation. How much do you care about the process of congressional redistricting, which determines how district lines are drawn for elections?

Midterm Motivation

How motivated are you to vote in the 2026 midterm elections for Congress and state offices?

The Federal Reserve adjusts interest rates to help manage inflation, support employment, and stabilize the economy. Lowering rates can encourage borrowing and spending, while raising rates can help slow inflation. Keeping rates steady may signal confidence in current economic conditions. What do you think the Federal Reserve should do with interest rates over the next year?

Which approach do you prefer for determining interest rates in the U.S.?

Trade Deal Fairness to the U.S.

Some people believe that trade deals between the U.S. and other countries benefit foreign nations more than they benefit Americans. Others believe the deals are fair or even favorable to the U.S. In the past, do you believe other countries have gained more from trade deals with the U.S. than Americans do?

Awareness of Tariffs Driving Increased Revenue

Tariffs imposed during the Trump administration have led to increased revenue for the U.S. government. Before this survey, were you aware that tariffs had increased government revenue?
