CYGNAL

Survey of Likely 2026 General Election Voters National

January 7 – 8, 2026 | n=1500 | $\pm 2.51\%$

Insights & Analysis

- 50% of voters support (46% oppose) Trump's U.S. military operations to arrest and charge Venezuelan President Nicolás Maduro, and support is stronger among less frequent and newer voters. 15% of Democrats agree with the actions.
 - However, voters oppose (54%) the U.S. running the country (41% support). The goal of what to accomplish is partisan:
 - GOP – 50% establish a stable government, 6% avoid military involvement at all
 - IND – 37% establish a stable government, 41% avoid military involvement at all
 - DEM – 19% establish a stable government, 60% avoid military involvement at all
 - Since the raid, Maduro's image has gone from 40% unfavorable to 69% unfavorable.
- Sticking with the theme of weapons...59% of Democrats believe the federal government has been weaponized against liberals/Democrats. 49% of Republicans believe it's been weaponized against conservatives/GOP. Independents see it more down the middle: 34% against both side, 33% against Dems, and only 16% against the GOP.
- 73% of voters believe they very or somewhat often encounter misinformation. Democrats believe this less, including 28% of them who don't encounter misinformation much at all.
- A greater problem for our country is that 88% believe we're living in an era where America can't agree on basic facts. Younger voters are more likely to strongly agree with this statement by a 9-point margin above voters over 55.
- There is a competitive but movable electorate. Democrats lead the generic congressional ballot 48% - 45%, a D+3 edge that has been fairly stable since late 2025.

Insights & Analysis

- However, unfavorables for Democrats in Congress (57%; -10 net fav since November 2025 and -20 net unfav total) are higher than for Republicans in Congress (54%; +2 net fav since last month but -12 net unfav total).
- The shift against Democrats in Congress is mainly being driven by college-educated voters (-10 net fav), without any offsetting by non-college voters (no change).
- Trump's image has improved +6 net points since November and, once voters are informed of Trump's economic and national security successes, 45% say they would have a more favorable opinion of him vs. just 17% less favorable.
 - 10% of Harris voters say they have an improved image of Trump after hearing these successes.
 - When newer and lower-propensity voters hear about Trump's successes, they become 5% more likely to be favorable of the President, showing the persuasion ability he has going into the midterms.
- The national mood remains sour but has improved +9 net since November. "Wrong track" is 55% (improved from 59%), while "right direction" moved up from 37% to 42%.
- Voters prefer divided government. A 51 – 42 preference for a divided Congress over unified GOP control suggests the need to pitch empathy, competence, accountability, and policy wins rather than single-party dominance.
 - The most likely voters (3-of-4 and 4-of-4) are 3 points more likely now than they were last January to prefer a unified Congress to support President Trump's agenda – a strong, positive signal for Republicans heading into the 2026 midterm elections.
- The top priority landscape still centers on pocketbook stress: inflation & the economy (20%) leads, with threats to democracy (17%), healthcare (15%), and government spending/waste (14%) next.

Insights & Analysis

Inflation's priority dropped from 25% in December (-5), but remains the #1 issue.

- Healthcare has slowed its growth as the main concern while government spending and waste has jump +3 points since December.
- It's urban voters (-11 inflation), non-White voters (-9), and non-college voters (-7) who are driving the shift away from inflation and the cost of living as a top priority.
- Urban voters drive most of the increase in threats to democracy as a top issue.
 - These same voters are 15 points more likely to say Trump's immigration policies are making their communities less safe, and 60% say the deportations have gone too far.
- Among those voting GOP on the generic ballot (45%), top priorities center on government spending & waste (25%), illegal immigration (25%), and inflation (17%).
- The Democratic electorate (48%) prioritizes threats to democracy (31%), healthcare (23%), and inflation (21%).
- Moderation in inflation priority, at least among non-TDS voters, reflects improved economic perceptions. 32% rate the U.S. economy as excellent or good (+3 since August 2025), though terrible + poor is still 41%.
 - Voters are 2 points more likely to rate their personal economy as excellent than they were in August – mostly driven by Republicans (+5), men (+3), and voters earning $125K+ (+6).
- Even with slight easing, voters still want tangible relief. Framing around lower taxes and spending restraint connects. Economic priority shows cutting taxes (32%) leads reducing deficits (28%), which is far ahead of increasing investments (19%).

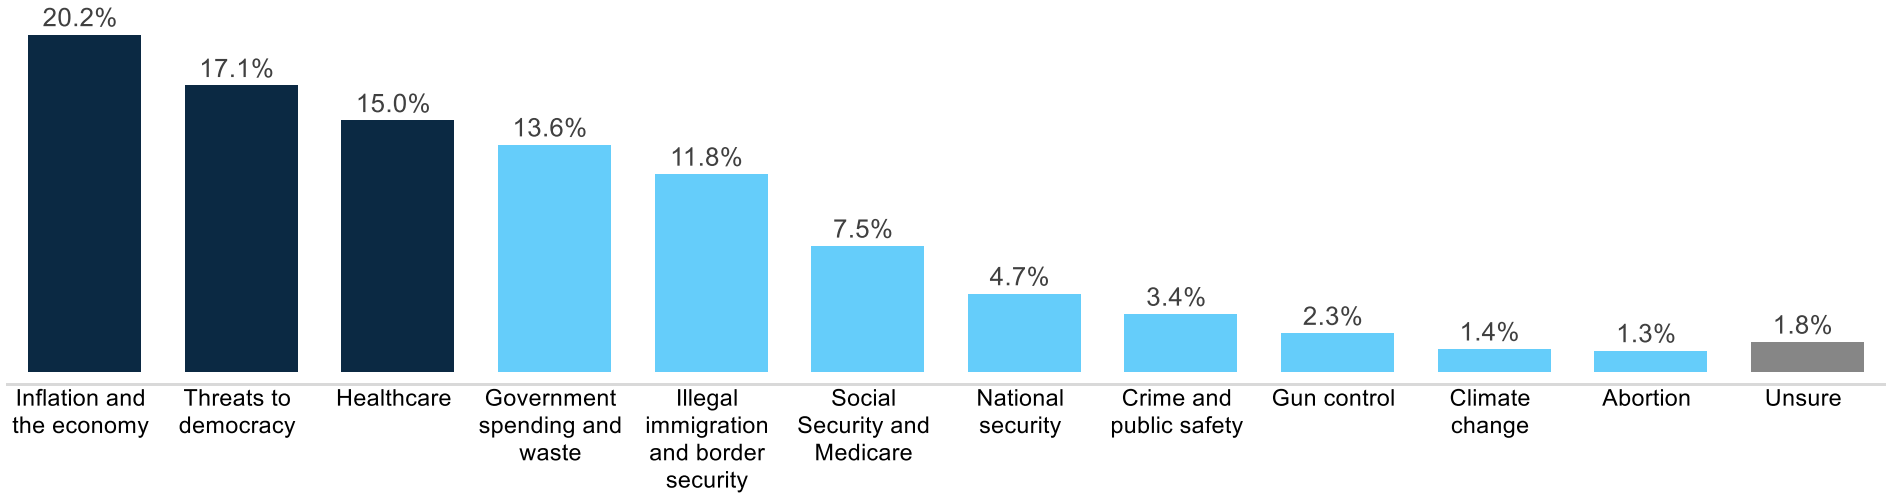

Insights & Analysis

- Democratic voters (+8 unsure over topline) are 3x as perplexed about how Congress should fix the economy as Republicans – who know the answer is cutting taxes (39%) and reducing deficits (32%).
- Economic confidence markers are weak: a 37% plurality are not at all confident in finding a comparable job within three months, and 30% say they're not at all confident managing a $1,000 emergency. Mortgage rate relief is neutral (44% "makes no difference"), with more likely to buy a house at only 13%. 42% oppose future rate cuts if they knew it would cause inflation to increase.
 - There is a strong gender and income divide on ability to withstand an emergency expense. 37% of women are not at all confident, compared to just 22% of men (33% extremely confident).
 - Half of voters earning $125K or more are extremely confident vs. just 12% of working-class voters earning less than $75K (45% not confident).
- National security is a bright spot for Republicans: Trump's national security handling 50% approve / 46% disapprove – a +4 net positive approval rating.
 - Affordability/economy are underwater (-11 net disapprove), reinforcing the need to foreground competent affordability improvements.
 - Men over 55 (58% approve) and non-college men (56%) approve of Trump's handling of the economy, but swing voters (56% disapprove) and non-college women (55%) disagree.
- Capitalism: 54 fav, 30 unfav; down modestly vs. 57% favorable in July.
- Socialism: 30 fav, 54 unfav; essentially flat vs. 31% in July.

Insights & Analysis

- The gap remains wide (+24 net for capitalism vs. -24 net for socialism), but capitalism's intensity shifted slightly from "somewhat" to "very" among older/conservative blocs, even as younger voters widened their pro-socialism lean.
- On deportations, Americans are divided, but it's important to note this survey started fielding on the day of a deadly ICE-involved shooting in Minnesota. Going too far 50%, about right 25%, not far enough 22%.
 - Perceived community safety from immigration policies is +6 net that Trump's policies have made communities safe. Housing market affordability impact is mixed; 36% say no impact. The body politic wants order with limits – room for a firm but fair Republican posture.
 - Voters picking the Republican on the generic ballot are split between about right (46%) and not far enough (43%), while Democrats are 87% "going too far." Swing voters say going too far by a 21-point margin.
 - Half of women under 55 and college-educated women – the same two groups Cygnal identified in October as being most likely to believe political violence against ICE is acceptable – believe Trump's immigration policies are making their communities less safe.
 - 61% of liberal White women age 18-44 believe violence against ICE is acceptable (Oct 2025 data).
- Preferred type of Republican: moderate (32%) leads Trump-aligned (21%) and traditional conservative (20%). 45% of swing voters want a moderate Republican who works across the aisle.

Affordable Care Act Subsidies Position

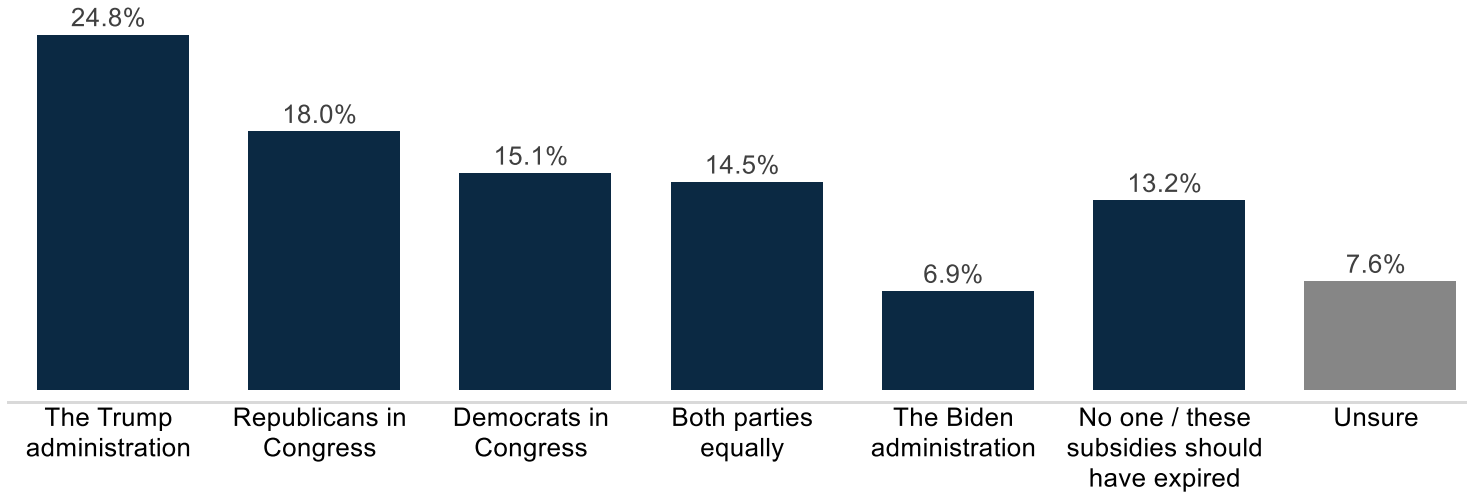

In 2021, the Affordable Care Act (Obamacare) was expanded to increase access to subsidized health insurance. That expansion was set to expire in 2025. Congress failed to agree on a budget, causing the longest government shutdown in history, and passed a temporary budget through January 30th while debating whether to continue the subsidies. What do you believe Congress should prioritize?
